

WEBINAR SERIES SPONSORED BY THE MONTREAL ITALIAN CULTURAL INSTITUTE

On July 9 in its Webinar Series the Montreal Italian Cultural Institute presented a discussion on the wide-ranging work of the Italian anthropologist Vito Teti, particularly that aspect of his writings that has to do with migration and related topics. The title given to this particular episode of the series could be rendered, in the English version, as “The world is a village and villages are the world: choosing to remain back and choosing to return”. The participants in this Webinar, besides Dr. Francesco D’Arelli, director of the Institute and moderator of the event, were Vito Teti from Italy, Francesco Loriggio from Ottawa, a member of NCIC-Capital District, Connie Guzzo-McParland from Montreal and Damiano Pietropaolo from Toronto, both of whom are well-known to anyone who has participated in events organized by the NCIC-Capital District here in Ottawa, as they have given presentations at the city’s Italian Canadian Historical Centre. The Webinar Series will continue during the rest of the year with other invitees. Information about the coming program can be obtained by checking the Web site of the Montreal Italian Cultural Institute, iicmontreal@esteri.it.
